| GeneDoucette I write what I want to read. Does that count? #litchat -1:06 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| SesshasWorld I only write what I love - it's hard enough, why make it even more difficult? #litchat -1:06 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| ErikaRobuck @LitChat Just lurking for a bit. Monday=Hockey. Hate to rush summer, but secretly longing for school days so I have more time for #litchat! -1:06 PM Jun 28th, 2010    |
| CarolBMTbooks Hi from NW MT! I wrote God's Thunderbolt: The Vigilantes of Montana, winner of the 2009 Spur for Best First Novel. #litchat -1:06 PM Jun 28th, 2010                  |
| pfallerj If you don't write what you love, why would you think other people would love it too? #litchat -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| AuthorWilliam @krisriggle Here, here. Love it. #litchat -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| SOBeUrsel My name's Mark - I love exploring the true nature of things, and use that exploration as a vehicle 4theme in my writing #litchat -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010                 |
| GLHancock Good thing I'm an "indie" having self-published a little e-book about writing, the topic I love. And editing. I write lots other. #litchat -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010       |
| GloriousPaper #LitChat is on folks! This week's topic: Write What You Love. Please use hashtags responsibly :) -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| brandg Wish I could say that I write what I love, but I very often have to hurt my protagonists seriously, so they can overcome. (shrug) #litchat -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010          |
| deberryandgrant RT @krisriggle: <-author of novels about family and complex relationships, which are exactly the type of books I love best. DITTO #litchat -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010 |
| CathrynGrant @GeneDoucette me too .. I think it counts #litchat -1:07 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| ErikaRobuck @LitChat I love Hemingway, Key West, historical fiction, and emotional grown in characters, thus it's all the subject of my WIP. #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010      |
| krisriggle Absolutely. RT @GeneDoucette: I write what I want to read. Does that count? #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| ridingnwriting @LeahPetersen That's what I love about having friends who double as sounding borads. They understand what you are trying to write. #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010 |
| AuthorWilliam @ErikaRobuck Glad to see you if just for a bit :) #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| LeahPetersen <--- name, my writing style I can't help but write what I love. I write the stories I'm "reading" in my head #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010                         |
| CathrynGrant @LeahPetersen thanks for the reminder, mine stories are weird too. #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| LeahPetersen RT @pfallerj: If you don't write what you love, why would you think other people would love it too? #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010                                  |
| GeneDoucette ...and I just love to read those limericks on the bathroom stalls, so... #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| pussreboots RT @krisriggle: Absolutely. RT @GeneDoucette: I write what I want to read. Does that count? #litchat (Me too) -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010                                  |
| CarolyBurnsBass Things I love and like to write about: People. Culture. Relationships. Music. Art. Food. Books. Travel. #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010                           |
| JulieeJohnsonn I'm Julie, I'm writing a 'comedic regency mystery'...becuz I love mysteries, the Regency period + funny books! #litchat -1:08 PM Jun 28th, 2010                     |
| GLHancock The queen of the "indie" realm, @CarolBMTbooks told me she has the next part of great advice about SP up on her blog -- link, Carol #litchat -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010     | jesshartley RT @GloriousPaper: #LitChat is on folks! This week's topic: Write What You Love. Please use hashtags responsibly : ) -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010

LeahPetersen @GeneDoucette LOL! #litchat -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010

CarolBMTbooks My grandparents were part of MT history. I want to write their stories, so they won't be forgotten. #litchat -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010

jbeemills Maybe if you always write what you love, you might never find new loves. #litchat -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010

JulieeJohnsonn I think if you love what you are writing about, it sustains you thru all the difficult times...you wouldn't last otherwise #litchat -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010

Hayley_DM @AuthorWilliam London, UK #litchat -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010

SOBeUrself My love 4my writing is my own reminder that if at least 1person likes it (me) then I just might hav an audience out there #litchat -1:09 PM Jun 28th, 2010

JulieeJohnsonn when you love what you write, it comes thru in the writing...it has passion + connection...the reader awakes & feels it 2 #litchat -1:10 PM Jun 28th, 2010 krisriggle Interesting... We should stay open minded. RT @jbeemills: Maybe if you always write what you love, you might never find new loves. #litchat -1:10 PM Jun 28th, 2010

SesshasWorld I love my characters, if I didn't I wouldn't be so cruel to them ;) it keeps the emotions real #litchat -1:10 PM Jun 28th, 2010

SOBeUrself RT @JulieeJohnsonn: I think if you love what you are writing about, it sustains you thru all the difficult times...you wouldn't last otherwise #litchat -1:10 PM Jun 28th, 2010

Gale_Martin @jbeemills excellent point about finding new loves #litchat -1:10 PM Jun 28th, 2010

LitChat Let's discuss this more. RT @pfallerj: If you dont write what you love, why would you think other people would love it too? #litchat -1:10 PM Jun 28th, 2010

deberryandgrant What happens when those who have been writing what they love, find publishers (traditional) not loving it so much any more? #litchat -1:11 PM Jun 28th, 2010

TaoJoannes @LitChat WIP is about an evil, manipulative, spoiled rotten rich bitch, so, yeah, I guess I write about what I love #litchat -1:11 PM Jun 28th, 2010

GeneDoucette @JulieeJohnsonn I literally can't finish it if it isn't something I enjoy reading/writing #litchat -1:11 PM Jun 28th, 2010

latta RT @jbeemills: Maybe if you always write what you love, you might never find new loves. #litchat -1:11 PM Jun 28th, 2010

dontlikeclowns Any lit peeps have an opinion on Outer Banks Publishing or Anthony Policastro? #litchat -1:11 PM Jun 28th, 2010

CarolBMTbooks RT @GLHancock: The queen of the "indie" realm, @CarolBMTbooks told me she has the next part of great advice about SP up on her blog -- link, Carol #litchat -1:11 PM Jun 28th, 2010

AuthorWilliam @brandg Perhaps you love to see characters breakthrough in certain ways? #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010

GLHancock @LitChat I certainly read about a lot more topics than only what I love. Why would people not read anything else? #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010

SOBeUrself @jbeemills whenever there's no love - it shows, at least for me, & forced writing is the worst kind #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010

ErikaRobuck If you don't have passion for your subject matter, you can't expect it from the reader. #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010 deberryandgrant Do you reinvent yourself--your style/topics--find something new to love in order to stay published? Go the independent route? #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010

| GeneDoucette @latta @jbeemills ah, but that's where reading comes in. I am a very fickle reader, always finding new loves. #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010                       |
| ReadItForward Most authors I know write what they love - tough profession otherwise! #litchat Also, hard to do it well if you're not truly invested -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010       |
| SesshasWorld @deberryandgrant publishers don't necessarily like it now - but my readers do. Find your audience and the pubs will follow #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010          |
| pfallerj @SesshasWorld Def makes it easier to get excited about spending the extra time to make something perfect & share it with the world #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010      |
| TaoJoannes @LitChat I don't believe formula writers always love their potboilers. Arthur Conan Doyle HATED Sherlock Holmes #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010                       |
| jbeemills I write ads for a living. I don't love it, but I've never learned more about audience. #litchat -1:12 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| ShaliniBoland My latest character is based on my 7-yr-old son. On how he reacts, how he talks etc. So yes, I'm currently write what I love. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010      |
| CarolBMTbooks @latta @beemills Not a chance. Not enough time now for all my literary loves. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| GeneDoucette I don't love everything I write, but most of it is good for a quickie. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| brandg @AuthorWilliam Good point. The love of triumph over adversity can get us to write some adversity we definitely don't love. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010                |
| deberryandgrant RT @jbeemills: I write ads for a living. I dont love it, but Ive never learned more about audience. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010                              |
| SesshasWorld @CarolBMTbooks I love my characters more than the plot - as long as I keep it true to them everything else is changeable #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010            |
| ShaliniBoland My latest character is based on my 7-yr-old son. On how he reacts, how he talks etc. So yes, I'm currently writing what I love. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010    |
| GeneDoucette @TaoJoannes That's because Conan-Doyle was a credulous nut #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| wildbloom Hey folks. Danielle checking in to #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| GLHancock If people were unable to write other than what they love, we would have no journalists, magazines, newspapers. #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 28th, 2010                         |
| CathrynGrant @jbeemills I write competitive rebuttals for a living, I never thought about it teaching me about conflict. #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 28th, 2010                         |
| AuthorWilliam RT @brandg: The love of triumph over adversity can get us to write some adversity we definitely don't love.<<<Yes! #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 28th, 2010                 |
| pfallerj @jbeemills Interesting angle. Most people are talking about writing on spec, where payment is a maybe #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 28th, 2010                                   |
| SOBeUrsel I've sacrificed more 4my book than most ppl in my life. If that's not love...#litchat -1:14 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| deberryandgrant @AuthorWilliam Don't all characters need a breakthrough, to experience some kind of growth or change in the course of the story? #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 28th, 2010 |
| krisriggle @GLHancock I put journalism in a whole other category than my literary pursuits. #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| AuthorWilliam @wildbloom Welcome, Danielle! #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |

|--|
| TaoJoannes @GeneDoucette perhaps, but it's the reason he made him addicted to cocaine, he hoped people would turn away #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| JulieeJohnsonn @SesshasWorld I love my characters 2! In fact, I'm finding it hard 2 make 1 of them a 'villain'...but my story needs a 'bad guy' :) #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010                              |
| GeneDoucette @GLHancock last time I checked we were running pretty low on journalists, magazines and newspapers, actually #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| jesshartley Like with relationships, love is a vital part, but there's more to a good relationship (book) than loving someone (what you write). #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010                                 |
| IreneZiegler RT @jbeemills: Maybe if you always write what you love, you might never find new loves. #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |

| pfallerj @jbeemills for the group - if you were getting paid to write, novel, short, poem, whatev, would that change how you tackle it? #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| CarolBMTbooks @SesshasWorld I love my characters & their stories. #litchat -1:16 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| GLHancock @GeneDoucette And the world will be worse off for it. Journalists also write literary nonfiction books. #litchat -1:16 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| SesshasWorld @JulieeJohnsonn I love the evil in them too - it's that contrast that makes them excitingly human. #litchat -1:16 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| AuthorWilliam @deberryandgrant Sure, @Brandg had first excluded love from this process, And I then I liked is line about "the love of triumph" #litchat -1:16 PM Jun 28th, 2010                                  |
| JulieeJohnsonn @GLHancock Re: magazine/news/etc but I bet those writers love the inquiry...there must be something that connects them...? #litchat -1:16 PM Jun 28th, 2010                                       |
| pussreboots @JulieeJohnsonn Find a character flaw and exploit it to make your character a villian. #litchat -1:16 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| CarolyBurnsBass @deberryandgrant Authors w/ stale pub experiences should explore new horizons. Find new agent/publisher willing to push for them. #litchat -1:16 PM Jun 28th, 2010                               |

| Hayley_DM If you write what you have a passion for it will shine through in your writing #litchat -1:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010   |
| GeneDoucette @GLHancock no disagreement there #litchat -1:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| JulieeJohnsonn I think most writers 2 R 'wordsmiths'...we just like tinkering w words + communication...its how I survived some of my office jobs! #litchat -1:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010 |
| LitChat Great questions coming in the feed, I'll RT many of them for closer discussion. #litchat -1:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |
| GLHancock @emktr That is the love of writing, being a writer, not writing about what you love. I did one obit and it did me in! #litchat -1:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010                    |
| bypetal I find I will often write about pain which I don't love but I do that to try to improve the life of others which i do love #litchat -1:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010                 |
| IreneZiegler @jbeemills RE: the reader is the point. I agree! #litchat -1:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010  |

happyyandybear @Hayley_DM thankyou. #litchat -2:18 PM Jun 28th, 2010

jbeemills @sharifwrites Good point. You don't have to be bad to be interesting. Unless I'm a total bore. Possible. #litchat -2:22 PM Jun 28th, 2010 jbeemills @ShaliniBoland Yes, it really helps. Even when your audience is sort of undefined. #litchat -2:23 PM Jun 28th, 2010

WEDNESDAY, June 28, 2010

LitChat Here we go for Wednesday's #litchat. We're talking today about authors whose novels feature what they love. Join us! -1:00 PM Jun 30th, 2010

AuthorWilliam #litchat is starting. Think you'll drop by? -1:02 PM Jun 30th, 2010

TheNewAuthor I made it to one of the #litchat sessions. I wasn't sure if time would allow me to this week. -1:02 PM Jun 30th, 2010

AuthorWilliam @LitChat Locked and loaded! #litchat -1:02 PM Jun 30th, 2010

LitChat Good question. Maybe we'll tackle this in a future topic. RT @bookswim: Are there novelists who write about what they hate? #litchat -1:03 PM Jun 30th, 2010

GLHancock Feel sure Kamran Pasha loves Islam. He writes with such passion about it. Now reading SHADOW OF THE SWORDS. His first was good, 2. #litchat -1:03 PM Jun 30th, 2010

FrankDiCesare Returning to #litchat after a week's hiatus. Glad to be back. -1:03 PM Jun 30th, 2010

DebraMarrs @katmagendie LOL my "appt." is euphemism for deadline too :-D #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010 landroecker LOVE! RT @kdueykduey I heard someone ask S. King why he wrote dark things and he answered, "What makes you think I have a choice?" #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

GLHancock @LitChat So many authors end up writing about writing, authors. Do they love themselves, their craft, or are they potboilers? #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

GeneDoucette @DebraMarrs And that's all he seems to love, given that's the plot of all his books. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

goldenwordsmith RT @Writers_Life: Author's glow: David Sheppard on creative inspiration and objectivity <http://ow.ly/1FKpv> #Writers_Life #amwriting #creativity #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

AuthorWilliam @CathrynLouis That's a cool pick up. That writing what we love shows itself in the descriptive detail we offer in the work. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

CarolBMTbooks @GLHancock Thank you, Georganna! I try to "channel" the struggle for the law in a land without law. Literally. #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

CathrynLouis RT @AuthorWilliam: I am loving this point being brought up about writing the SETTINGS we love. Passion for locale is a real way to tap inspiration! #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

CarolyBurnsBass @GLHancock Even more fascinating, as a PR rep I met was very degrading of abs, claimed they were sub-intelligent! Was shocked! #litchat -1:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010

SesshasWorld @GeneDoucette tis why I write erotica after all! #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010

julichilliard RT @landroecker: LOVE! RT @kdueykduey I heard someone ask S. King why he wrote dark things and he answered, "What makes you think I have a choice?" #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010

katmagendie @AuthorWilliam yes, setting can be whole other character, but not intrusive one or loud-mouthed one, but the strong silent type :) #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010

4evermore @AuthorWilliam #litchat absolutely! either I get to learn more about a place I like, or I get to create an homage to a place I love. -1:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010 petesimms Jim Harrison, an avid outdoorsman, who wrote a lot about our relation to nature #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010

katmagendie @DebraMarrs laughing! :-D #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010

DebraMarrs @LitChat Thx for distinction on "love" - ev'thing returns to: Write what you know #litchat -1:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010

TheNewAuthor @katmagendie I think SKing writes from his love of the unknown edges of reality. Like Rose Red, The Shining or Misery. #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 30th, 2010

DebraMarrs @katmagendie Preferring procrastination to "appts." You? #litchat -1:15 PM Jun 30th, 2010

deberryandgrant Hello litchatters. #litchat -1:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

katmagendie @SesshasWorld Oh! they made you change the setting? ugh! #litchat -1:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010 kdueykduey @CathrynLouis re JRR Tolkien post, The Lord of the rings is sort of a WWII novel. Evil in the lands, some hide, some help...#litchat -1:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

JBBanko @CarolBMTbooks I was a trial lawyer for 40 years. My first novel (and those after) are inspired my real events. #litchat -1:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

CarolBMTbooks @SesshasWorld Place becomes character & is written from love. #litchat -1:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

Moribundy So we're talking about what we love to write? I think I always explore people. Put them in bad situation, and see what comes out. #Litchat -1:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

DebraMarrs @GeneDoucette Grisham would like to break out of courtroom? Tried to in The Painted House and the baseball bk (title?) #litchat -1:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

CarolBMTbooks @petesimms I loved River Runs, too. Better than the movie! #litchat -1:20 PM Jun 30th, 2010

chislehurst Surely it's less important to write what you love, than for your writing to explain *why* you love. #litchat -1:20 PM Jun 30th, 2010

KevinMCooke My YA novel: The setting of my book is based on the place I live. Colorado Springs. The characters are the dogs I own. #litchat -1:20 PM Jun 30th, 2010

SesshasWorld @katmagendie twice! talk about losing the love #litchat -1:20 PM Jun 30th, 2010

kdueykduey @Noni_Writes Asking for productive writing habits from a group of people on twitter in the middle of a week day?? I ah, I...blush...#litchat -1:20 PM Jun 30th, 2010

GeneDoucette Most of my settings are urban, and most begin in the Boston area. it's what I know. #litchat -1:21 PM Jun 30th, 2010

CarolBMTbooks @JBBanko I enjoy reading fiction based on the law. Scott Turow, for example #litchat -1:21 PM Jun 30th, 2010

AngelaDove Recently heard an author say the toughest part is when you're writing poorly but have to write your way out of it. I'm so there. #litchat -1:21 PM Jun 30th, 2010

katmagendie @AuthorWilliam oh! yes, those settings aren't written about enough, or maybe I'm not reading them enough. #litchat -1:21 PM Jun 30th, 2010

GLHancock Sadly, what you know is not always what you love, and vice versa. Good novels always require research. #litchat -1:21 PM Jun 30th, 2010

SesshasWorld @AuthorWilliam started in Scotland, then to Egypt and ended in Italy #litchat -1:21 PM Jun 30th, 2010

 SesshasWorld @TheNewAuthor nt I - I adore writing about sex. #litchat -2:08 PM Jun 30th, 2010
 kdueykduey RT @chislehurst: @ErikaRobuck Would you agree that, while it's good to write about what you love, the best writing shows *why* you love? #litchat -2:08 PM Jun 30th, 2010 TracyClark_TLC RT @kdueykduey: @TracyClark_TLC SCBWI is the farm team for kidlit andYA. Editors come to author-seek. It's a 30 year construct of integrity/intent. #litchat -2:08 PM Jun 30th, 2010 ingkypsy @kdueykduey Here's a National Geo article about compare/contrast Lord of Rings with WWI & II <http://bit.ly/a5ITqg> #litchat -2:09 PM Jun 30th, 2010 innaj @kdueykduey His main flaws, for me, include inability to see female characters as real part of the world..but I still love the bks #litchat -2:09 PM Jun 30th, 2010 ingkypsy RT @AuthorWilliam: RT @kdueykduey: @wildbloom Yes. Deprived of weather, we invent other drama...CA is a good place to write.<<<AGREED. Love Cali. #litchat -2:10 PM Jun 30th, 2010
 kdueykduey @ingkypsy Very cool Thanks so much! #litchat -2:10 PM Jun 30th, 2010 ErikaRobuck Worry with sex in fiction that author gives too much of self away. Your thoughts? #litchat -2:10 PM Jun 30th, 2010 antallan RT @AuthorWilliam: @kdueykduey This is true. A Fantasy writer can go so deep in their world that the gateway in for other readers can become narrow. #litchat -2:10 PM Jun 30th, 2010 TheNewAuthor @SesshasWorld How do you write about it? In intimate, almost painful detail, or with enough detail for the reader to get worked up? #litchat -2:11 PM Jun 30th, 2010 ingkypsy @kdueykduey Not the article I was thinking of but brings up interesting parallels etc. :) #litchat -2:11 PM Jun 30th, 2010 kdueykduey @innaj Yes, I have wondered about that. Maybe just his generational influences. I love the sheer ambition of the books...#litchat -2:11 PM Jun 30th, 2010 ingkypsy @kdueykduey And I always spell parallel wrong unless I'm writing longhand - what's up with that?! #litchat -2:11 PM Jun 30th, 2010 kdueykduey @ingkypsy And I spell balloon wrong if I am not typing. What IS up with that? #litchat -2:12 PM Jun 30th, 2010 innaj @kdueykduey Yes. There's still nothing quote like them, though people have tried. #litchat -2:13 PM Jun 30th, 2010 inkgypsy @AuthorWilliam Interesting re metaphor drawn from creator. I'm fascinated with symbolism/metaphor - subtle = awesome read for me. #litchat -2:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010 inkgypsy RT @AuthorWilliam: @GLHancock I think the genre draw their metaphors from their creator. The writer then loves what they are speaking of figuratively. #litchat -2:14 PM Jun 30th, 2010 inkgypsy @kdueykduey More different media I work with the more areas of my brain I'm aware of/boggled by. How on earth do I manage walking?! #litchat -2:16 PM Jun 30th, 2010

MariAdkins @Zoe_E_W @GeneDoucette is it bad taht i blush when i write an erotic scene? #litchat -2:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

AuthorWilliam @inkgypsy I agree its really compelling. I think artist are constantly connecting with readers/audience this way. #litchat -2:19 PM Jun 30th, 2010

Wiswell @ErikaRobuck Mostly authors don't give too much of themselves away in sexual fiction. They just give crappy parts. #litchat -2:20 PM Jun 30th, 2010

inkgypsy @AuthorWilliam Agree-comes down to the mythic thing - timeless symbols & stories of/for the human race. #litchat -2:23 PM Jun 30th, 2010

THahnBurkett Yes. RT @ErikaRobuck: Should change "write what you love" to "write what you're passionate about." Applies to the good & the bad. #litchat -2:24 PM Jun 30th, 2010 jreahedrick But it's such good stuff! RT @kdueykduey: I see bits of my own interior/emotional stuff in every book, regardless of setting/plot. #litchat -2:24 PM Jun 30th, 2010

deberryandgrant @CarolBMTbooks Meant to say "love Anne Tyler's people" but in #litchat I often suffer from too fast fingers! -2:28 PM Jun 30th, 2010

Zoe_E_W @MariAdkins @GeneDoucette That depends...what were you doing that made you blush? Did it require a ciggie afterward? =^p #litchat -2:29 PM Jun 30th, 2010

SesshasWorld @ErikaRobuck emotionally . . . sometimes, but then, that's part of what makes it real and believable #litchat -2:30 PM Jun 30th, 2010 inkgypsy RT @THahnBurkett: Yes. RT @ErikaRobuck: Should change "write what you love" to "write what you're passionate about." Applies to the good & the bad. #litchat -2:33 PM Jun 30th, 2010 yobyh RT @THahnBurkett: Yes. RT @ErikaRobuck: Should change "write what you love" to "write what you're passionate about." Applies to the good & the bad. #litchat -2:34 PM Jun 30th, 2010

MariAdkins @Zoe_E_W @GeneDoucette just the writing ... LOL #litchat -2:39 PM Jun 30th, 2010

tommyjaybooks RT @InkMuse: I love Nancy Pickard, especially her most recent two books which are about her home town. You can tell she "feels" it. #litchat -2:45 PM Jun 30th, 2010

SMozer RT @kdueykduey: @GLHancock Plot is about the character, though. Don't ask what would happen next, ask what he/she will DO next...#litchat -3:21 PM Jun 30th, 2010

DawnHerring RT @wildbloom: I let the world build itself around the characters this last time around. Felt more organic that way. #litchat -3:28 PM Jun 30th, 2010
